

Pete Nottage - Presenter

Description:

Like most presenters, Pete Nottage is a man of many skills. These include walking, talking, sitting down and very occasionally doing a mixture of all three.

People ask him how he managed to become what he is today. He replies that it's because he doesn't have any form of talent whatsoever, so it just seemed like a natural thing to do.

Pete embarked on his presenting career in 2002, in local radio. His fun, engaging ways led to one in five people in Cheshire tuning in to hear his show and also led to a 45 year old listener called Maggie drawing him a picture of some dolphins.

Since moving to London in 2005, Pete's career has gone from strength to strength. Calling himself the "curious man", he strives to answer the questions that no-one really asked in the first place. He's presented exciting projects for companies such as Smart and Sony Ericsson and has also hosted the inaugural Oxford Fashion Week.
